

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A content managing system is disclosed, that has a content managing portion comprising a content library for storing a plurality of content files, a library managing system for managing the content library, a customer file storage device, having areas
5 assigned to individual users, for storing content files for the individual users, a customer file managing system for managing the customer file storing system, and a delivery managing system for managing the delivery of a content file to a user terminal unit, wherein the content managing portion and the user terminal unit are connected through a network, and wherein the content managing portion is operated from the 10 user terminal unit through the network so as to manage a content file of a user.